NOTICE FROM: Chief, DoD Voluntary Education

Subject: Updated Listing of the DoD Voluntary Education Partnership MOU (DoD MOU) and Accrediting Agencies Recognized by Department of Education (DoED)

Recently, DoD received several questions concerning the application for the DoD MOU and accrediting agencies recognized by DoED. Paragraph "n" of section 1, entitled, "TA FOR SERVICE MEMBERS PARTICIPATING IN EDUCATION PROGRAMS" of Enclosure 3, Procedures, in the DoD Instruction (DoDI) 1322.25, Incorporating Change 1, dated December 6, 2012, Voluntary Education Programs, states the following on accreditation:

"When used for postsecondary training or education, tuition assistance (TA) shall be provided only for courses offered by postsecondary institutions accredited by a national or regional accrediting body recognized by the U.S. Department of Education."

This DoD policy has not changed. However, the information contained in this notice will assist institutions, Education Services Specialists, and Service members to connect the verbiage used in DoDI 1322.25 and the DoED list of accrediting agencies located on the DoD MOU web page at: <http://www.dodmou.com>. Schools eligible to sign a MOU with DoD must be accredited by one of the agencies listed on the Source of Accreditation drop down menu within the DoD MOU verification application.

As per DoED, there are two basic types of educational accreditation, one referred to as "institutional" and the other referred to as "specialized" or "programmatic." Institutional accreditation normally applies to an entire institution, indicating that each of an institution's parts is contributing to the achievement of the institution's objectives, although not necessarily all at the same level of quality. The various commissions of the regional accrediting agencies, for example, perform institutional accreditation, as do many national accrediting agencies.

Specialized or programmatic accreditation normally applies to programs, departments, or schools that are parts of an institution. The accredited unit may be as large as a college or school within a university or as small as a curriculum within a discipline. Most of the specialized or programmatic accrediting agencies review units within an institution of higher education that is accredited by one of the regional accrediting agencies. However, certain accrediting agencies also accredit professional schools and other specialized or vocational institutions of higher education that are freestanding in their operations. Thus, a "specialized" or "programmatic" accrediting agency may also function in the capacity of an "institutional" accrediting agency. In addition, a number of specialized accrediting agencies accredit educational programs within non-educational settings, such as hospitals.

As per DoED, all of the specialized agencies accredit nationally and many of the specialized agencies serve as national institutional accrediting agencies, therefore the specialized or programmatic accrediting agencies are included in the list of national institutional accrediting agencies for the DoD MOU. The DoED list of regionally and nationally recognized accrediting agencies is attached to this notice and can be located by accessing the DoED Table of Contents with the title of "Accreditation in the United States": <http://www2.ed.gov/admins/finaid/accred/index.html>.
